

AP English IV: Literature and Composition Summer Reading

By the first day of class you should read—

- 1984 by George Orwell
- Brave New World by Aldous Huxley

In addition, students should set aside some money to possibly purchase another book during the school year.

There is no writing assignment over the summer reading due at the beginning of the school year. Rather, students will be subject to a number of writing assignments throughout the fall based on the two novels and their connections to other literary works.
